What to do if you think your Child Tax Credit or Working Tax Credit is wrong

This factsheet tells you what to do if you think a Child Tax Credit or Working Tax Credit decision or penalty is wrong.

If you're not happy with a tax credits decision, you can ask us to look at it again. You'll normally have to do this within 30 days of the date of our decision.

Mandatory reconsideration

If you think that something on your award notice or penalty notification is wrong, then contact us within 30 days so that we can look at the original decision again. We call this 'mandatory reconsideration'. When we have looked at the decision again we will send you a Mandatory Reconsideration Notice explaining what we have done. This will include all the information you need to appeal to an independent tribunal if you are not happy with our decision. We will put any recovery action on hold while we carry out the reconsideration or while your appeal is being considered.

When you can ask us to reconsider

The decision letter we sent you will tell you if you can ask us to look again at our decision. You can do this when:

- you think a decision is wrong
- your award doesn't take into account a change of circumstances
- your award is reduced or has stopped
- you don't agree with a penalty notice
- you've been charged interest

When you can't ask us to reconsider

You can't ask us to reconsider a decision asking you to pay back an overpayment. But, you can ask us to look at our decision again if you think the amount of tax credits you were awarded in the first place was wrong.

Although you can't ask us to reconsider a decision asking you to pay back an overpayment, you can dispute an overpayment if you think that we made a mistake or gave you wrong advice.

Usually you have to dispute recovery of an overpayment within 3 months from the date of:

- your final decision notice
- the decision on your Annual Review notice (if your award is renewed automatically)
- your statement of account
- the letter which gives you our decision on your mandatory reconsideration
- the letter from the Tribunal or Appeals Service which gives you their decision on your appeal

You can only dispute recovery of an overpayment that happened in the tax year the notice or letter relates to. You will not normally be able to dispute overpayments from earlier tax years.

We will only accept a late dispute in exceptional circumstances, for example, if you were in hospital for that 3-month period. If you do send us a dispute, we will continue to seek recovery of the overpayment while we are considering your dispute.
You can dispute an overpayment by:
- filling in form TC846 ‘Tax credits overpayment’, go to www.hmrc.gov.uk/forms/tc846.pdf or if you do not have access to the internet, phone our helpline
- writing to us at the address shown under ‘Help’ on page 1

In some cases we can revise an incorrect award up to 5 years later, but only where we made a mistake, it would be in your favour and it was mostly our fault. We call this ‘official error’.

If you are having difficulty paying back an overpayment, you can ask us to look again at the payments we’ve asked you to make. Our leaflet COP26 ‘What happens if we’ve paid you too much tax credits?’ tells you more about this and how to dispute recovery of an overpayment including the time limits. Go to www.hmrc.gov.uk/leaflets/cop26.pdf or if you do not have access to the internet, phone our helpline.

Who can ask for a reconsideration

Usually the person who made the claim or who’s been getting the tax credits can ask for a reconsideration. If you claim as a couple, only one of you needs to do so.

You can ask an independent adviser to help you. If you’re an appointee and claim tax credits for someone else, you can ask for a reconsideration for them.

How to ask us to reconsider

Your request needs to be in writing.

You can:
- fill in and send us the attached reconsideration form
- send us a letter
  - you must put your name, National Insurance number and write ‘Reconsideration’ at the top of your letter
  - tell us which decision you want us to look at again and what you think is wrong
  - tell us the date of the decision you want us to look at again

Please send your completed reconsideration form or letter to the address on the decision letter or the address shown under ‘Help’ on page 1.

Deadline for asking us to reconsider

Normally, you have to ask for a reconsideration within 30 days of the date of our decision. In special cases we’ll give you more time but you will need to tell us why your request is late. We can’t accept a request to reconsider which is dated 13 months or more after the date of our decision.

What happens next

We’ll look at the decision again and explain it to you, including any changes we have made. We will write to you to explain the law and the facts we used to make our decision on your reconsideration request. If you are happy with the explanation, you don’t need to do anything else. If you still don’t agree with our decision and you live in England, Scotland or Wales, you will need to appeal directly to an independent tribunal - the Mandatory Reconsideration Notice explains how to do this; if you live in Northern Ireland, you will need to appeal directly to us at the address shown under ‘Help’ on page 1.

The tribunal will be run by one of the following, depending on where you live:
- for England, Scotland and Wales – HM Courts & Tribunals Service, go to www.justice.gov.uk
- for Northern Ireland - The Appeals Service, go to www.dsdni.gov.uk

If your circumstances change

If anything changes that could affect your payments, you must tell us straightaway.
